The Voice of Choice: An Examination of African American Parents' Choice of Charter Schools

Danielle Marie Conner

Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Follow this and additional works at: http://knowledge.library.iup.edu/etd

Recommended Citation
http://knowledge.library.iup.edu/etd/151

This Dissertation is brought to you for free and open access by Knowledge Repository @ IUP. It has been accepted for inclusion in Theses and Dissertations (All) by an authorized administrator of Knowledge Repository @ IUP. For more information, please contact cclouser@iup.edu, sara.parme@iup.edu.
STUDENT HAS RESTRICTED ACCESS TO FULL TEXT OF THE DISSERTATION.

ONLY COVER PAGES AND ABSTRACT ARE AVAILABLE AT THIS TIME
THE VOICE OF CHOICE: AN EXAMINATION OF AFRICAN AMERICAN PARENTS’ CHOICE OF CHARTER SCHOOLS

A Dissertation
Submitted to the School of Graduate Studies and Research in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree
Doctor of Education

Danelle Marie Conner
Indiana University of Pennsylvania
May 2014
Indiana University of Pennsylvania
School of Graduate Studies and Research
Department of Professional Studies in Education

We hereby approve the dissertation of

Danelle Marie Conner

Candidate for the degree of Doctor of Education

Monte Tidwell, Ph.D.
Professor of Education, Advisor

George Bieger, Ph.D.
Professor of Education

Kelli Kerry-Moran, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of Education

ACCEPTED

Timothy P. Mack, Ph.D.
Dean
School of Graduate Studies and Research
Title: The Voice of Choice: An Examination of African American Parents’ Choice of Charter Schools

Author: Danelle Marie Conner

Dissertation Chair: Dr. Monte Tidwell

Dissertation Committee Members: Dr. George Bieger
Dr. Kelli Kerry-Moran

In the early 1990s the first charter school laws were established. Over the past two decades, charter schools have emerged as school of choice for many families, especially poor and minority families. The concept of having a choice in education is an important component to consider when examining the reasons that parents choose charter schools; especially for families that have not had a choice in the past.

Seeking a choice in education is not a new phenomenon. Magnet schools and voucher programs existed prior to charter schools. However, charter schools are a relatively new phenomenon in the field of education. Over the past two decades the charter school movement has continued to grow to over 4,000 charter schools nationally that serve over 1.2 million students.

A large number of the 1.2 million students that attend charter schools are poor and minority students. This study seeks to contextualize African American families’ choice of charter schools by framing this choice within a historical and contemporary context. Articles and interviews were examined to cultivate the historical context. Questionnaires and parent interviews were conducted to comprehend the contemporary context. The articles, interviews, and responses to questionnaires were examined through the lens of Critical Race Theory.
There are central themes or tenets within Critical Race Theory. For the purposes of this study, the common nature of racism, property rights, and interest convergence are the main tenets that provide a framework for contextualizing the historical and contemporary experiences of African American’s experiences with education and choice.

This question of why African American families are choosing charter schools needs to be considered within a historical context. The answer to this question of charter school choice is not simple or straight-forward. In the United States, African Americans have struggled to receive a fair and equal education. This question needs to be considered within this historical context. To understand the present, the past needs to be considered.