Ethnoracial Mixology: A Poetic Ethnography of Mixed-Heritage Individuals' Experiences of Racial and Ethnic Identification and Identity

Tarah Dunn
Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Follow this and additional works at: http://knowledge.library.iup.edu/etd

Recommended Citation
http://knowledge.library.iup.edu/etd/1251
STUDENT HAS RESTRICTED ACCESS TO FULL TEXT OF THE THESIS.

ONLY COVER PAGES AND ABSTRACT ARE AVAILABLE AT THIS TIME
ETHNORACIAL MIXOLOGY: A POETIC ETHNOGRAPHY OF MIXED-HERITAGE INDIVIDUALS’ EXPERIENCES OF RACIAL AND ETHNIC IDENTIFICATION AND IDENTITY

A Thesis

Submitted to the School of Graduate Studies and Research in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree

Master of Arts

Tarah Dunn

Indiana University of Pennsylvania

May 2015
Indiana University of Pennsylvania
School of Graduate Studies and Research
Department of English

We hereby approve the thesis of

Tarah Dunn

Candidate for the degree of Master of Arts

-----------------------------
Curtis Porter, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor of English, Advisor

-----------------------------
Gloria Park, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of English

-----------------------------
Resa Crane Bizzaro, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of English

ACCEPTED

-----------------------------
Randy L. Martin, Ph.D.
Dean
School of Graduate Studies and Research
Building on the literature of Wallace (2004), Potowski and Matts (2008), and Anderson (2014), this study investigated mixed-heritage individuals’ perceived experiences of racial and ethnic identification and identity through critical race theory (Delgado and Stefancic, 2001). This study explored how race and ethnicity were challenged and celebrated in U.S. contexts through the research questions: How do mixed-heritage individuals perceive their racial and ethnic identities are negotiated and (re)constructed in their lived-experiences? How can poetic representations (developed through arts-based inquiry) produce insights into the perceived identities of mixed-heritage individuals? Poetic ethnographic methods included open-ended surveys and interviews from three participants yielded 30 narrative poems and 5 lyrics poems. Findings indicated that participants individually and collectively conceptualized race and ethnicity in differing and similar ways. Themes included: identity mismatch, awkward meetings, unknown borderlands, identity guessing-game, and identity embracement. Finally, this study considers how perceptions and experiences influence English language teachers.